1. Claims 7, 8, and 24-27 withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a nonelected species, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Applicant timely traversed the restriction (election) requirement in the reply filed on 6/19/06.

2. Note that previously withdrawn claims 15 and 16 have been allowed in view of the allowance of the independent claim they depend from. Note also that presently withdrawn claims 7 and 8 would also be allowed if (1) claim 7 was made dependent on claim 4 , and (2) claim 4 was rewritten in independent form.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1, 2, 9, and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over JURISCH et al (4,972,286).

Note figure 1. JURISCH et al shows a write head (10) on an electrically conductive substrate (12), where the write head has a core (14) which is electrically connected to the substrate by an electrical connector (40) to provide a ground.

JURISCH et al differs in not utilizing separate read and write heads.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to configure the head of JURISCH et al with separate, electrically isolated, read and write heads. The motivation is as follows: the Examiner takes Official Notice that utilizing separate, electrically isolated, read and write heads in place of a single R/W head is old and well known. This allows each head to be optimized for its specific function. One of ordinary skill in the art would provide such separate heads to improve the transducing performance.

5. Claims 4-6 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

6. Applicant's arguments filed 10/13/06 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues that the Official Notice in the first office Action did not specify that known separate read and write heads were electrically isolated, and further refers to the OKUMURA patent as only showing a head structure in which the read and write heads share a pole and thus are not electrically isolated.

The Examiner did not refer to the OKUMURA patent in the previous 103 rejection.

Electrically isolated separate read and write heads are extremely old and well known. Since claim 3 recited that the read heads was electrically isolated from the write head the Official Notice included that feature.

Clearly the teaching of grounding the head core in JURISCH et al is not limited to read heads.

7. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
